

DARKNESS

Undisturbed at Doylestown.

Dispute Over a $10,000
Bond Issue.

And a Hallow'een Mix-Up With Vapor Lights.

Doylestown people are now carrying lanterns at night, same as their forefathers did before electric, gas or vapor lights had flickered into existence. When the citizens of that village voted some time ago for an issue of $10,000 worth of bonds, to build an electric power plant, their design was to supply power for a street railway, then operating extensively on paper. Of course, the plant was also designed with a view to furnishing light to the village.

But movements toward building the street railway to connect Doylestown with the outside world were not commenced within the proscribed limit, after the granting of a franchise, and the people halted likewise with their power plant deliberations. They didn't want to build it, unless it were to operate a railway, and the bond issue project was abandoned. Yet there were vapor lights in Doylestown—and Hallow'een night was coming on apace. Hallow'een night and a bad taste in the public mouth never did dissolve into a happy solution. This fact has not been disputed by history in Doylestown. At the same time, the sickly rays of vapor lights seemed to shine only to bring out clearer the picture of a defeated plan for electric lights—which were wanted badly.

There is now a mystery in Doylestown—and no public lights with which to ferret it out. On Hallow'een night every vapor lamp in the town was made to look like the tail end of a full-grown explosion. The town is now in utter—and every other kind—of darkness at night.

Some people are trying to lay the blame of the destruction of lamps on the boys—but others are wondering if the spirit of the Boston Tea Party was not responsible. At any rate, there is trouble in Doylestown over the light question, and pending its settlement the darkness of night is practically undisturbed.

FLAME

Was Held Close to Her Face.

Woman Horribly Tortured and Killed.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—(Spl.)—A young and attractive looking woman lies dead at the morgue as a result of what is alleged to have been an attempt to torture her with the flame of a kerosene lamp. Her companion, who, according to her dying statement is the man that tortured her is at the jail hospital suffering burns caused by the attempt to save her life.

The woman is Anne Von Broth and the man who lives with her is Andrew Bawland. Saturday night the couple entertained. Later neighbors found the woman lying on the floor, her night clothes developed in flames and the lower part of her body fearfully burned.

Bawland was standing over her, making every effort to save her.

Shortly before she died the woman said she and the man had quarreled, that he removed the cover and globe from a large kerosene lamp and held the flame close to her face, clutching her tight around the neck with his other arm.

In the struggle to free herself the lamp was upset and her clothing at once caught on fire.

LINE

To Turkeyfoot May be Built.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the N. O. T. Co. to be held in Akron the third Saturday in January, the proposition to continue the line started toward Turkeyfoot lake will be considered. This is a section of the line, as planned for the Canton, Massillon & Akron road, which was temporarily abandoned, when the Canton-Akron was purchased. If the line to Turkeyfoot—nine miles—is built, it will be extended from the line on South Main st. Three miles have already been graded from Akron.

Six miles of track—out of Canton—have been built on the Canton-Akron line, and a large force of men is at work on the rest of the contract.

This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists. E. Steinbacher & Co., wholesale agents.

UNLUCKY DAYS.

Akron Hunter Had It When He Wanted Best of Luck.

An Akron hunter whose prowess as a marksman is great, and who once in a while likes to relate his feats, met a great obstacle one day last week when he ran up against Charles Widdersheim on a hunting wader. The hunter in question was Ed Myers of Crouse st. Widdersheim bet Myers that he could bring home twice as much game in a day's hunt as he, Myers, with a merry twinkle in his eye, took him up. Bright and early they set out, "Charley," with his traps departed to the Manchester hills while "Ed" and his dog hied away to the wilds of Copley. "Ed" was "up against it." Somebody must have put dough in his shells, as he came back with only three rabbits. Widdersheim with 25 quail and five ducks returned singing "Hot Time Tonight." Myers looked glum, paid the wager, and vows he will get even.

BANQUET

Held by Stationary
Engineers.

Attended by 100 Members of Association.

Good Speeches, Plenty of Music, and Lively Recitations.

A banquet, attended by 100 people, was held Saturday night, at K. O. T. M. hall, by members of local and neighboring branches of the National Association of Stationary Engineers. Many of the members had their wives with them. It was a pleasant affair, and some good speeches were made. Guests were present from Cleveland, Youngstown, Canton, Massillon, Kent, Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls. Among the visitors were District Examiner Miller, of Canton; Vice President Engelson, of Cleveland, and Past President Herbert E. Stone, of Boston.

Vocal and instrumental music and recitations varied the program of toasts. Mr. T. W. Shelton, chief electrical engineer of the N. O. T. Co., was toastmaster. Short addresses were delivered by Messrs. Engelson and Stone on the educational advantages of the Association, and of the progress it had made.

Mr. Shelton gave a bit of history relating to the Association, and incidentally paid a tribute to women, which was greatly admired by the ladies present. "A good, pure and pretty woman is the supreme example of the handwork of the Almighty," he said. "A woman's love is the current that flows around the world, and their hearts form a magnet which draws heaven nearer to earth."

"The Association of Engineers was organized nineteen years ago in New York. It was there that the principles and the constitution were built. That constitution and the preamble says, 'This Association shall not be used for the furtherance of strikes or in any way interfering between employer and employee, education being the principle feature.' In this direction we have made a notable gain. The character of the additions made in the past years add to the standing, reputation, and influence of the order, under the head of License and Inspection."

"I am pleased to report good progress and evidence of the increased interest taken in our profession by the citizens of the United States. Citizens are demanding that steam boilers under pressure shall be made safe by a law, that will permit no one to have care of this dangerous device unless his fitness for such charge has been made the subject of legal inquiry. This increased knowledge has taken shape in the passage of laws providing for the inspection of boilers, and the examination and licensing of persons in charge of them."

"Let us see that all our efforts are for the elevation of our profession, and that we may be able to meet the future with the assurance that those who follow us in this order shall say we are wise; we built well; we labored faithfully; we were a power of good; not only for the engineers, but for the people."

How Judge Anderson Will Establish Record For Summit.

Although the indexing of the records in the Probate office is continuing steadily, progress is slow. Much of the writing in the old books is hard to interpret, and some of the books are being re-paged, or re-numbered. However, the work done thus far is of a splendid character. Some of the books have been re-bound and repaired. Lawyers have predicted that when the indexing is complete there will not be found in Ohio a Probate office whose records will be in better shape than those of Summit county.
